Devil's Lake.
Tangaroa, the Chippewa, came from the north and pitched their tepees on the north shore of the lake. They had reason to believe that the Sioux were camped on the southern shore, and they planned to cross to the north before daylight and surprise their traditional enemies. The Sioux had a similar thought, and design, and each tribe proceeded to exterminate the other. They met in about the middle of the lake and fought, and all were lost. The time is not fixed except that the incident marks an epoch in the history of both tribes. Another battle was fought afterward on the south shore between other contingents of those respective tribes. The Chippewas came in canoes from the north as before. This was in 1807. The Chippewa warriors were all slain but one man, who returned badly wounded and riddled. The fatalities connected with the lake and the apparitions gave rise to the name Minnewanauk, or spirit water, mysterious water, haunted water, fated water, and finally to Devil's Lake as the only English equivalent for the Indian idea as expressed in Minnewanauk. The Chippewas came here in canoes. The Sioux also used canoes. With but few portages, the former could easily at that time, while the lake was so far above its present level, come from Lake Superior to Devil's Lake. Since the fatalities related those Indians have a superstitious dread of canoes. Young people are getting over the dread, but old Indians will wade to their waist, while white boats are within reach, but won't dare enter.—Minneapolis Tribune.

There is no other work in the world of which so many copies are printed annually as of the Chinese almanac. The number is estimated at several millions. It is printed at Peking and is a monopoly of the emperor.

Once I Was Blind But Now I Can See

Thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

"I have suffered everything possible with sore eyes and headache, and sores so severe that I was blind. I tried everything I heard of without benefit, and went to the Rhode Island Hospital, but found no relief there. A friend told me of Hood's Sarsaparilla, so I bought a bottle and a box of Hood's Pills. With More Than Thanks

I want everybody to know that since I have been taking these medicines, I have become as well as ever. My eyes have perfectly healed and the headache is cured. From my picture you can see there is nothing the matter with my eyes now. Mrs. ELIZA LOUGHEE, Foster Hill, Westerly, R. I.

Hood's Pills cure nausea, sick headache, indigestion, biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

A KILLING ON MAUI.

CHINAMAN DONE TO DEATH, SUNDAY, THE 7TH INST.

His Skull Beaten In-Native Confesses Guilt-Details of an Unusually Bloody Crime.

WAILUKU, April 13th.—One of the most horrible tragedies in the history of Maui occurred at Kamaole, Kula, on the afternoon of Sunday, the 7th inst. Hook Ngee, a Chinaman, in the employ of S. Ahmi having been brutally murdered.

On Monday afternoon Sheriff Andrews was notified that the body of Hook Ngee had been found in a cluster of prickly pear bushes near Ahmi's house at Kamaole. The body of the unfortunate Chinaman presented every evidence of a desperate struggle, and the blows which killed him must have been terrific. There were several holes in the man's skull of considerable depth, one penetrating from below the left eye five inches downward into the throat. Parts of the skull had been completely jammed into the brain, the neck was broken and showed plain marks of a lasso having been tightened around. The top of the unfortunate victim's head showed numerous ugly gashes which were undoubtedly caused through the body having been dragged over a considerable distance of road covered with lava rocks.

A deep pool of blood was discovered about 300 yards from the place where the body was found near which was also picked up a trigger guard of a shotgun, plainly indicating that this was the spot where the brutal deed was committed. The broken stock of a gun was found near the gate of Ahmi's premises. Information was given Sheriff Andrews which led to the detection and arrest of the murderer, a native named Kukelemai, likewise in the employ of Ahmi.

It appears that there had existed considerable ill-feeling between the native and his victim, and on Sunday afternoon Kukelemai went to the house of Ahmi in the latter's absence and procured a shotgun, claiming that Ahmi had sent him for the same. Kukelemai, after his arrest made a partial confession to his employer, stating that he had met the Chinaman on the road and quarreled with him about some money matters which resulted in Hook Ngee's assaulting him whereupon he struck the Chinaman with the gun, breaking the stock, and when his victim tried to escape he chased him and killed him with one blow of the gun barrel. But to make perfectly sure that his victim should be really dead, he inflicted a series of powerful blows on his head with the butt end of the barrel, and thereupon fastened his lasso around the dead man's neck and with his horse dragged him a considerable distance into some bushes.

The horse's mane and thigh and the left side of the murderer's pants were found thickly covered with gore, he evidently having tried to lift the body onto his horse.

Kukelemai pointed out to the officers the hiding place of the gun barrel, which was likewise covered with blood.
